Community Engagement / Development Update

Freeport-McMoRan Formal Engagement Process

Freeport-McMoRan's primary formal stakeholder engagement is conducted through the Community Partnership Panel (CPP) meeting process. CPP meetings occur in Freeport-McMoRan communities and consist of stakeholders who represent a cross-section of the community.

The quarterly stakeholder meetings are designed to:

- Share information and encourage dialogue (questions, concerns, input) about the company's operational activities, including actual or perceived positive or negative impacts, so that we may respond or address
- Discuss social issues and related community development needs to support the preparation, navigation or actions needed to address risks to resilience, including eventual transition to a post mining scenario
- Share projects and foster collaboration that leads to successful communities and operating environments

Please reach out to Sharon Offutt at soffutt@fmi.com if you have an organization or an individual that you would like to nominate for the membership to the Grant County CPP.
